Pennetta, Vinci advance to final four

WIRE SERVICE REPORTS

NEW YORK — The Italian flag was waving proudly over the U.S. Open on Wednesday after Flavia Pennetta toppled fifth seed Petra Kvitova to join compatriot Roberta Vinci in the Flushing Meadows semi-finals.

Defying the odds and rankings, 30-somethings Pennetta and Vinci put their names in the record books by becoming the first two Italian women in the Open Era to advance to the last four of a grand slam.

"I think this is really important for our country. We did a lot of good things in the last 10 years. We have me, Roberta [Vinci], Francesca [Schiavone], Sara [Errani], now Camila [Giorgi] is coming also," Pennetta told reporters.

"So I think it's really good for Italian tennis," she said. "I'm very proud. Of course yesterday when I saw Roberta in the locker, I mean, I hug her and I say — I mean, she was amazing," she said.

The dream of an All-Italian U.S. Open final, however, will require some special magic particularly from the 32-year-old Vinci, who has the daunting task of facing world No. 1 and three-times defending U.S. Open champion Serena Williams.

The 33-year old Pennetta will take on second-seeded Romanian Simona Halep, who advanced with a three-set win over twice U.S. Open finalist Victoria Azarenka. Pennetta has always been at home on the New York hardcourts having now advanced to the quarter-finals or beyond in six of her last seven visits to the National Tennis Center.

Aside from her U.S. Open resume there was little to hint of another semifinal appearance after what was an unimpressive run up to the year's final grand slam, which included second-round exits in Toronto and Cincinnati and a first-round loss in New Haven.

"Before the tournament I never think to be so far in the tournament, so it's something special," Pennetta said. "It's something amazing for me in this moment.

"I didn't play really well in the last week and the feeling was not that good," she said.

"I just come here and try to practice, try to find the good feeling with the ball, with the atmosphere here, and everything it seems working," she added.

For just the third time in the Open Era, three of the four semifinalists are age 30 years or older.

"I mean, of course we are a little bit old for the age of tennis right now," said Pennetta.

"But we are here. We still fight. "We still enjoy what we did. I think this is important," she said.

Blake mistakenly roughed up by NYPD

Former tennis player James Blake was attacked and detained Wednesday by an undercover New York police officer who mistook him for a thief, according to the New York Daily News.

As Blake waited for a car to take him to the U.S. Open, the unnamed plain-clothes officer ran toward the former tennis star and slammed him to the pavement, then cuffed him.

Cardinals rally past Cubs, avoid sweep

BY BUCKY DENT
THE SPORTS XCHANGE

ST. LOUIS — Trailing 3-1 with six outs left Wednesday, the St. Louis Cardinals were about to be swept by the Chicago Cubs, which would have made things even tighter in the National League Central.

MAJOR LEAGUES

However, Chicago starter Jon Lester, who dominated St. Louis for most of seven innings, left for a pinch hitter, and the Cardinals preyed on his three successors.

Scoring three runs in the bottom of the eighth, the Cardinals stole the series finale 4-3 at Busch Stadium. "He did everything he wanted to do," St. Louis manager Mike Matheny said of Lester. "But that's why you keep grinding away — to hopefully drive up his pitch count and get him out of there."

After permitting a leadoff triple to second baseman Matt Carpenter and a one-out RBI single to right fielder Jason Heyward in the first, Lester didn't permit another hit. He retired 20 of the last 21 men he faced, walking catcher Yadier Molina to lead off the fifth but not allowing a hard-hit ball along the way.

Even so, manager Joe Maddon sent up a pinch hitter for Lester in the eighth, ending the left-hander's day at 105 pitches. That decision, coupled with a bullpen meltdown, led to a major plot twist.

Third baseman Mark Reynolds coaxed a one-out walk from reliever Pedro Strop, and pinch hitter Greg Garcia singled. Carpenter followed with an RBI single off reliever Clayton Richard (3-1), scoring pinch runner Pete Kozma.

Maddon walked to the mound again, hooking Richard and waving in Fernando Rodney. However, rookie left fielder Stephen Piscotty foiled that strategy, ripping Rodney's first pitch to the center field wall on one hop to plate pinch runner Peter Bourjos and Carpenter.

It was Piscotty's fifth game-winning RBI since being called up from Triple-A Memphis on July 21, giving him 30 RBIs in his first 45 major league games. As he stood on second, Piscotty pumped both fists to the dugout and yelled as the crowd of 43,557 exploded.

"I couldn't resist that time," Piscotty said. "The crowd was loud, it was exciting. It just came out of me."

It was the first lead of the series for St. Louis, which had been outscored by Chicago 20-6 to that point. Closer Trevor Rosenthal wasted little time wrapping it up, requiring just nine pitches to record his 43rd save.

The Cardinals (88-51) upped their division lead over second-place Pittsburgh to five games, pending the outcome of the Pirates' game in Cincinnati, and pushed the Cubs 7 1/2 games back.

Chicago (80-58) outhit St. Louis 11-5, touching starter Carlos Martinez for 10 hits and three runs in five innings. However, the Cubs stranded eight men during Martinez's stint, which wound up being crucial.

Yankees' CC Sabathia reinstated, makes start

THE SPORTS XCHANGE

The New York Yankees reinstated left-hander CC Sabathia from the 15-day disabled list to start Wednesday night's game against the Baltimore Orioles.

MAJOR LEAGUES

Sabathia has not pitched since Aug. 23 and went on the disabled list the next day with right knee inflammation. He had knee surgery last season that limited him to just eight starts for the 2014 Yankees.

Sabathia, who is making $23 million and under contract for $25 million next year, is 4-9 with a 5.27 ERA this season and will make his first start back wearing a new supportive knee brace.

"The two bullpens and the simulated game I threw (Sunday), I've been kind of planting and throwing on my normal thing and the brace keeps the knee there," Sabathia said Monday. "So as long as it does its job, I'll be fine."

Sabathia tested his knee while throwing about 60 pitches Friday and reported feeling normal.

"I've been testing it pretty good in the bullpens," Sabathia said. "Even playing catch on the side, I was letting it go. I was confident that I wouldn't feel anything and I would be ready to go."

The Yankees also out-righted outfielder Tyler Austin to Double-A Trenton.
