Heisman winners in NFL burnish pro resumes

BY SAM FARMER
LOS ANGELES TIMES

Six days before college football recognizes its most outstanding player of the season, the NFL got in on the Heisman Trophy hype.

Four former winners — Cam Newton, Sam Bradford, Jameis Winston and Marcus Mariota — had huge days to help their teams to victory Sunday as the league entered its stretch run for the playoffs.

The Carolina Panthers remained the NFL's only undefeated team by narrowly winning at New Orleans, 41-38, with Newton throwing for five touchdowns and further fueling his most-valuable-player campaign.

While his stats weren't gaudy — 14 for 24, 120 yards and two touchdowns — Bradford was under center for Philadelphia's 35-28 stunner at New England.

Then, there were the two most recent Heisman winners, Tampa Bay's Winston and Tennessee's Mariota. They were the first two picks in last spring's NFL draft and were an undeniable 1-2 punch Sunday.

Winston directed the Buccaneers to a 23-19 win over Atlanta, and Mariota won a 42-39 shootout with Jacksonville.

Heisman winners aren't always great NFL players, but these two rookies are leaving their mark. Each had at least one All-DVR run. Mariota rambled 87 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter as the Titans snapped an 11-game home losing streak.

Winston's big run was shorter but even more astounding. On third and 19, he dropped back to pass, couldn't find anyone open, then tucked the ball and took off. He appeared to be stopped short of the first down, but he somehow bounced out of the pile and continued the run for a total of 20 yards.

"That play was amazing," Buccaneers running back Doug Martin said. "I thought he was down, but that type of effort is contagious and that's the type of effort that we need on this team."

Mariota ran for 112 yards and threw for three touchdowns and 268 yards. He has four games with at least three touchdown passes, tying Peyton Manning for the most ever by a rookie.

The Titans won in Nashville for the first time since Oct. 12, 2014 — their only home win last year. Still, they're largely playing for pride now at 3-9.

The stakes are much higher for the Buccaneers, who at 6-6 are still in the playoff mix. The team they beat is 6-6 too, but the Falcons have lost five in a row and six of seven since getting off to a 5-0 start.

"That's as tough as it gets for us," Atlanta coach Dan Quinn said. "The finish was at hand. For us, finishing is about doing right longer, and we didn't get that done."

In Foxborough, Philadelphia had a 21-point lead with less than six minutes to play, yet nearly saw that evaporate. Even as Patriots fans streamed out of Gillette Stadium to get an early jump on the drive home, Tom Brady brought his team back to the brink of victory.

Brady threw for a touchdown to make it a two-score game, then, after a successful onside kick, trimmed the deficit to seven points with a one-yard scoring run with three minutes left.

Suddenly, the Philadelphia mantra "Fly Eagles

Fly" should have been "Why Eagles Why?"

But it was not to be for the Patriots, as Brady completed just one of seven passes (counting a clock-stopping spike) on his team's final possession, and New England turned it over on downs.

Philadelphia, which was coming off back-to-back losses to Miami and Tampa Bay, had not beaten New England since 1999, when Andy Reid was coaching the Eagles and Pete Carroll was coaching the Patriots.

So it was a great near-comeback for Brady until the end.

Well, nobody's perfect. Except the Panthers, at least so far.

NFL moves Cardinals vs. Eagles to prime time

The Week 15 matchup between the Arizona Cardinals and the Philadelphia Eagles has been moved to Sunday night under the NFL's flex scheduling policy.

The Cardinals and Eagles will play at 8:30 p.m. on NBC's "Sunday Night Football" in the Dec. 20 matchup. The previously scheduled Sunday night contest between the Cincinnati Bengals and San Francisco 49ers was moved to a 4:25 p.m. start on CBS.

Also, the telecast of the game between the Buffalo Bills and Washington Redskins has been switched from CBS to Fox. That game is scheduled for a 1 p.m.

Seahawks release benched CB Williams

The Seattle Seahawks released veteran cornerback Cary Williams, who was inactive the past two weeks after losing his starting job.

Williams, who will turn 30 on Dec. 23, signed a three-year, $18 million contract over the offseason that included a $3.5 million signing bonus and $7 million in guaranteed money. He was immediately inserted as the starter opposite Richard Sherman to replace Byron Maxwell, who signed with Williams' former team, the Philadelphia Eagles.

However, Williams never acclimated to the Seahawks' coverage scheme and was regularly targeted by opposing quarterbacks. He was benched two weeks ago in favor of DeShawn Share and was inactive on game day with Jeremy Lane returning from injury.

Williams recorded 44 tackles, one sack, one forced fumble, one fumble recovery and one touchdown this season. The Seahawks will have a dead salary cap hit of $2.33 million for Williams in 2016, according to spotrac.com.

Joe McCloskey gave UMFK its first lead and the lead for good in overtime on a little roller in the paint at the 4:19 mark and added separate free throws just under a minute apart to get the lead to four.

A pair at the line from Daniel Webster's Rondell Best made it a 70-68 game with 2:24 to go but UMFK's Marquis Glenn followed with a huge 3-pointer with 62 seconds on the clock to push the lead to five and Daniel Webster pulled no closer.

McCloskey pumped in a game-high 32 points on 13 of 18 shooting and added 10 rebounds to lead UMFK (10-7). Roosevelt Smith notched a double-double of 14 points and 11 boards to go with five assists and three steals. Glenn and Qaadir Ali each added 13 points.

Bruins

The lead lasted until late in the period when Josi beat Gustavsson with 24.9 seconds left in the first period.

There were two fights — Boston right winger Tyler Randall bloodying Predators left winger Eric Nystrom in the second one — before the Bruins struck quickly on the power play at 10:53 of the period. Right winger James Neal was off for an embellishment call and, nine seconds later, center Ryan Spooner, who had been robbed by Hutton on the previous power play, fed Eriksson for the tap-in, his first goal on eight games and 10th of the season.

It was the 11th power play goal against the Predators in the last nine games.

Nashville needed just 12 seconds of power-play time to re-tie the game at 11:20. Josi walked in from the right point and went right around the defense — and a stick reach by defenseman Zdeno Chara — and stuffed the puck past Gustavsson. The visitors held a 24-11 shots advantage through two periods.

NOTES: The Predators rested G Pekke Rinne in preparation for a home and home with the Chicago Blackhawks Tuesday and Thursday. ... Bruins LW Brad Marchand, speared in the groin by Vancouver's Brandon Prust on Saturday night, resulting in Prust earning a $5,000 fine and calling it the "best money I ever spent," reacted Monday, saying, "I think part of my game is to get under people's skin, and I thought that he played with a lot more class in his game ... but clearly he doesn't have that integrity that I think a lot of people thought he had." ... Nashville D Shea Weber was named the NHL's Second Star after collecting six points, including his first career hat trick, in three games last week.

"With a goaltender like that, you have to keep pressure on them, you have to get pucks by them," Barton said. Bangor responded 1½ minutes later when Cota made a short pass in front to DeLaite, who snapped it past Pierce. But Falmouth wore down the short-shifting Rams.

"We were pretty beat, but we hung in there and I'm proud of them," Paradis said.

The Yachtsmen dominated the first period but led only 1-0 despite peppering Fournier with 13 shots. Fournier racked up 12 saves, including a nifty right-pad stop on Louis Mainella's break-in back-handler at the 12:46 mark.

Norris staked the Yachtsmen to a 1-0 lead 4:31 into the contest. Parker Wyatt got the puck to Noyes in the circle to the right of Fournier and Noyes fired a hard pass to the far post, where Norris one-timed it into the open net.
