BSO gives emotional concert with original Richman piece

The Bangor Symphony Orchestra gave an emotional and intimate concert Sunday afternoon that brought concertgoers to their feet in a roar of appreciation.

CONCERT
REVIEW

More than 70 musicians closed the program by conquering Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 1 in D major, also known as the "Titan," with joy and grace. The players opened the concert by playing Richard Wagner's Prelude to Act III of "Lohengrin" with unexpected energy.

Guest soloist George Vosburgh charmed concertgoers in his performance of Johann Hummel's Concerto for Trumpet in E Major. Vosburgh, principal trumpet player with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, played the complex piece with relaxed precision. He, like other talented and experienced soloists who have performed with the BSO, raised the musical bar and the musicians, a mix of professionals and community members, soared over it.

But it was the gentle, loving tribute to the mother of six children that embraced the hearts of those in the audience and flooded them with memories of their own families. Since Lucas Richman became conductor and music director in 2010, he has composed nearly every year an original piece as a fundraiser for the organization.

"Until the Circle Is Unbroken" was commissioned by former board president Joyce Clark Sarnacki to honor her parents Pete and Diane Clark, and her five siblings. The concept for creating the work followed the evolution of a simple five-note theme, according to the program notes. The name Diane was translated to the musical pitches D-B-A-G-E. The theme represented the matriarch, with the subsequent six variations capturing certain qualities of each of the six children, resulting in a final celebratory coda, the program note said.

While the piece was intended to be specific to the Clark family, it evoked memories of my childhood with my parents, sisters and brother. With each measure, mental snapshots of weekend picnics, camping trips, Christmas mornings and Easter egg hunts swirled through my mind and my eyes filled with tears.

In that piece, Richman wrote a joyous tribute to family that will resonate long after the sting of the Patriots' loss to the Broncos on Sunday has faded.

The Bangor Symphony Orchestra will next perform "The Pops: An Evening of Romance with Noel Paul Stookey" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Collins Center for the Arts in Orono. For information, call 942-5555.

Comedian Carol Burnett 'gobsmacked' by SAG award

LOS ANGELES — She may already have won some of the biggest U.S. honors but beloved comedian Carol Burnett says she was "gobsmacked" when told she would receive the Screen Actors Guild 2015 lifetime achievement award.

Comedy duo Tina Fey and Amy Poehler will present Burnett with the honor on Saturday at the Screen Actors Guild annual award ceremony in Los Angeles.

"To use my friend Julie Andrews' comment, this is very British, I was gobsmacked," Burnett said. "Gobsmacked, what a great, great word that is and it really describes what I feel."

Burnett, 82, the Emmy-winning star of the 1960s and 1970s TV sketch series "The Carol Burnett Show," is regarded as a pioneer for women in comedy.

"I've been told that Amy [Schumer], and all of them, mention my name but if I'd never been born, they'd be doing what they're doing," Burnett said. "They would be where they are today. I appreciate the trailblazer label but I don't think that's really the case."

"The Carol Burnett Show" won 23 Emmy Awards and Burnett went on to receive the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the Mark Twain Prize for American Humor, and became a Kennedy Center honoree in 2003.

More recently, she appeared in the TV series "Hawaii Five-O" and in the 2014 Broadway production of "Love Letters."

Asked about her legacy, Burnett said she hoped to be remembered as someone who had made people laugh.

"Well, I would hope they wouldn't say, 'Who was she?'" I would hope they say, 'She made me laugh. She made me feel good,'" Burnett said. "That's the legacy one would want to leave — that you made people feel good at a time when maybe they weren't feeling so good."

Burnett joins the ranks of other recent Screen Actors Guild lifetime achievement honorees including Debbie Reynolds, Betty White and Dick Van Dyke.
