Sedgwick charter captain featured on Travel Channel

BY JOHN HOLYOKE BDN STAFF

Throughout the summer months, Capt. Pete Douvarjo takes all kinds of clients out on his 21-foot Parker named Reel Life.

Sometimes he welcomes families aboard, and the registered Maine Guide helps them learn to fish for pollock and mackerel. Other times, later in the season, he takes adventurous anglers farther from shore and targets sharks.

Late last October, Douvarjo, owner of Eggemoggin Guide Service, hosted a film crew aboard. On Wednesday, he'll finally get to see the results of that trip, when episode 111 of "Follow Your Past" airs on the Travel Channel at 9

According to a description on the Travel Channel "'Follow Your Past' is a series that follows average Americans on a journey to breathtaking locations as they uncover their very personal connection to history's extraordinary events. Each episode, host and author Alison Stewart

> "[At one point] the hostess said, 'He's the cabin boy. What else would he do?" Douvarjo said. "I said, 'Clean the boat.' I gave him a rag, and he started washing the boat down.'

Douvarjo also enlisted the help of fellow captain Bill Sweetland of Downeast Custom Cruises, who ran the "chase" boat that held other film crew members.

Douvarjo said he enjoyed the experience but said if he agreed to a similar trip in the future, he'd change a few things. Working with a film crew was tough, he said, and the group ended up returning from the island much regular trips in late May and hopes appearing on the show gives his business a bit of publicity.

Douvarjo said he'll start

'June has been getting better every year. When I started out, I'd do one or two [trips] in June. Then I'd do five or six. Last year I did a dozen in June," Douvarjo said. "I don't know how many hundreds of thousands of people will be watching [the show], but if one or two call, it's worth it to do. It's an experience.

Turner to launch streaming video service for film buffs

BY JESSICA TOONKEL REUTERS

Turner Communications is expected to announce Tuesday that it is launching its own streaming video-ondemand service for film buffs this fall, according to a company statement reviewed by Reuters.

Turner, which is a division of Time Warner Inc., is the latest in a wave of media companies to launch its own over-the-top video service to accommodate the growing number of younger viewers who are canceling cable subscriptions in favor or watching content online, a practice known as cord-cutting.

The new service, called FilmStruck, will focus on independent, foreign, art on house and cult classic films that people know and not original shows as streaming video provid- aged by Turner Classic Movers, such as Amazon, Hulu ies. The company hopes to and Netflix, are increasingly doing.

Turner is partnering with New York-based film distributor, Criterion Collection, which until now had offered all of its 1,100 films through Hulu.

FilmStruck will not only feature films such as "Mad "Cinema Paradiso" and "Seven Samurai" but also will have filmmakers' commentaries, bonus content and stories about the films themselves, Coleman Breland, president of Turner Classic Movies and Turner content distribution, said in an interview.

"We didn't just jump into the fray and say, let's offer an SVOD [streaming video demand] service," Breland said. "This is very targeted and focused.' FilmStruck will be manannounce pricing for the service within the next 60 days, Breland said. The service will be solely subscription-based and will not have any advertisements.

Turner is launching its own streaming online service just months after reports surfaced that its parent Time Warner was in discussions to take a stake in Hulu, which is jointly owned by 21st Century Fox Inc., Walt Disney Co. and Comcast Corp.'s NBCUni-

The launch of FilmStruck is one example of what customers and investors should expect to see more of from Turner in the next several months as the company focuses on being more consumer-centric, said John Martin, chairman and CEO
