There is help for urinary incontinence

Dear Dr. Roach: I can't DR. KEITH ROACH recall you ever addressing urinary incontinence in women. I wonder if you can tell us what can be done about it. the bladder). It's possible to — O.P.

Twenty-five to 60 percent of all women (and 11 to 34 percent of older men) seek care for urinary incontinence, and many more do not report it due to embarrassment or worry about treatment. This can lead to social isolation, poor quality of life, sexual problems, infection and increased burden on caregivers.

The two major types of incontinence in women are stress incontinence (for example, losing urine with a cough or a sneeze) and urge incontinence (the sensation of needing to go to the bathroom RIGHT AWAY for fear with accidental loss of urine). a person to both stress and students. The students were have several types.

Treatment depends on the type of incontinence, but most women benefit from pelvic floor exercises and bladder training. My experience has been that many providers, especially male ones, don't know how to recommend these properly, and a referral to a pelvic-floor physical therapist can be extremely helpful, as can biofeedback. Since excess weight is a major risk factor for incontinence, weight loss can be helpful. The other condition I see frequently overlooked is vaginal atrophy. Many older women have thinning of the lining of the vagina and ure-(continuous dribbling from exam is all that is necessary to which 80 percent received.

estrogen cream can improve incontinence.

If none of these is effective, medication can be used, but my experience has been, and the literature supports, that teaching women techniques to prevent incontinence is more effective and has fewer side effects than medication.

Dear Dr. Roach: My daughter is in a college where there is an outbreak of mumps. She was vaccinated as a small child. The school is offering a free booster. Is it necessary to get this? — D.L.G.

Outbreaks of mumps happen periodically, even in highly vaccinated populations. The vaccine is thought to be

When one door closes

Bridge by Frank Stewart

"When God closes a door," my fingers are in it.'

Louie has learned to expect bad breaks. His problem is that when one door closes, he won't look for another that's open. In today's deal Louie risked 2NT at his third turn. At 3NT he won the first club with the queen and took the A-Q of spades, and East discarded. Louie then led a club to dummy, cashed the king of spades and led the jack of diamonds: three, seven, king. West took his high spade and led the queen

OVERTAKES

Louie needs to find extra chances. After he cashes the ace of spades, he must overtake his queen with the king. If East followed, Louie could concede a spade, winning five spades, two clubs, a diamond and a

When East discards on the second spade, Louie lets the jack of diamonds ride. West wins and leads Scrabble Solution another club, but Louie takes the ace and finesses in diamonds again. He has four diamonds, two spades, two clubs and a heart.

You hold: A K 9 7 5 3 2 7 7 5 ♦ J 5 ♣ A 8 2. Your partner opens one heart, you respond one spade and he rebids two hearts. What do you say?

ANSWER: You might survive a rebid of two spades, but your partner might have a low singleton spade or even no spades at all. Since his bidding promises six or more cards in hearts, you know that a reasonable heart fit exists. Pass. Game is impossible, and you have nothing to gain by acting again. South dealer
