Traveling to Russia

ORONO — Nine University of Maine students will have a chance to implement what they learned in an International Entrepreneurship course during a 14-day trip in Russia.

The Maine Business School undergraduates will visit seven communities in Russia from May 17-30, including Moscow, Yaroslavl, Syktyvkar and St. Petersburg.

In Syktyvkar, students will live with Russian families for four days, said Andrei Strukov, a native of Russia and director of the UMaine Faculty Development Center. Strukov, who co-teaches the course with professor of management John Mahon, said that during previous years students have made rewarding, personal connections with their hosts.

Another goal of the trip is for participants to learn about the many opportunities, business and otherwise, beyond the borders of Maine and the United States, said Strukov.

Students will meet with heads of businesses, including MBS graduate and executive in residence Shawn McKenna, who owns restaurants in Russia.

They also will visit with UMaine alumnus Matthew Shannon, who when he was a student, twice took part in the UMaine trip to Russia. After graduating, he returned there to operate a tourism business in St. Petersburg. Shannon now works at a law firm in Moscow, said Strukov.

The UMaine contingent, which will travel throughout Russia by plane, train, bus and boat, also will sight-see and tour cultural landmarks and attractions. In Moscow, for instance, the itinerary includes visits to the Kremlin, Tretyakov Gallery, the Novodevichy Convent, Monastery of St. Sergius and Sergiev Posad. And in St. Petersburg, a city built over more than 40 islands, the students will take a boat trip on rivers and canals and tour the Peterhof Palace, park and gardens.

To prepare for the trip, the class studied Russian history, culture, economics and politics. For information, visit <http://umaine.edu/russia/>.
