

CENTRAL MAINE COMMUNITY COLLEGE OFFERS NEW LIFE SCIENCE PROGRAM

Enables Students to Begin Pre-Med Studies

PROVIDED BY CENTRAL MAINE COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Central Maine Community (CMCC) in Auburn is now offering an associate degree program in Life Science. This new program provides students with a broad, general survey of scientifically accumulated knowledge focused on life and biological sciences.

Students completing this degree could enter the workforce as scientific technicians or transfer into science, technology, engineering, or math (STEM) majors at four-year colleges and universities. The Life Science program provides appropriate course sequencing for efficient transfer, and reinforces and deepens core learning across the curriculum.

"The College is very excited to be launching the Life Science degree. This program provides increased opportunities for graduates and has already enabled CMCC to expand our transfer relationships with four-year institutions," said Betsy Libby, dean of academic affairs. "We are working with several universities to establish transfer agreements for students. The University of New England will be accepting all Life Science credits as applied coursework. This not only allows for a seamless transition, but in the end saves our graduates time and provides a focused area of study."

The 61 credit program includes 34 credits in lab science consisting of two semester sequences in Biology, Chemistry, Anatomy & Physiology, and Organic Chemistry. Students seeking admission must have a high school diploma or equivalent, and be qualified to enroll in College Writing (or College Writing Seminar) and College Algebra.

More information is available online at cmcc.edu. Anyone interested is encouraged to contact Admissions at 755-5273 or enroll@cmcc.edu. The College is hosting an open house from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 24.
