Springvale Farm Walk

9 a.m. to 2 p.m. • Sunday July 26, 2015

Join the Springvale Farm Walk and experience a microcosm of Maine agriculture. The self-guided walk features a concentration of farms found nowhere else in Maine. Farmers raise sheep, beef cattle, Christmas trees, mushrooms, vegetables, berries, apples and hops. They also train racehorses, bottle hard cider and make maple syrup. The trail is about four miles long and leads walkers through farm fields, pastures, orchards and woods. The path is well-marked and generally follows gentle terrain. There are a few rough spots, but certainly walkable by children. Shorter options are also available. Each farm along the way serves a complimentary refreshing drink. A few of the farms also sell produce and prepared food. Each farmer will stamp the back of your map. If you collect stamps from all farms, you're entitled to a discount at any of the participating farms for the next year. This event is held rain or shine. Parking and a shuttle service is available, for more information visit www.sanfordtrails.org
